

11 Exports of defence-related products in 2024

This chapter provides overall information about Norwegian exports of defence-related products and dual-use items for military end use in 2024. The overview shows the value of exports of products, technology and services that are subject to the licensing requirement and included in the Ministry's control lists, and that are subject to the reporting requirement in the Export Control Regulations.

Information is not provided about temporary exports for demonstration purposes abroad, or about goods that have been returned to Norway having been temporarily exported for the purpose of repair. The figures presented in this white paper are based on the reports submitted by Norwegian companies. The companies report on exports in relation to the export licences that have been issued.

The figures reflect natural variations in deliveries. Year-on-year variations in the value of exports may be due to the fact that deliveries under a contract take place in several stages, and delivery dates may deviate from the planned delivery schedule. The figures are also affected by currency fluctuations and inflation. The format is the same as in previous white papers.

Exports are presented in the following tables, graphics and lists:

The white paper also provides information on Norwegian exports of civilian small arms, as well as on exports of defence-related products by the Norwegian Armed Forces for their own use abroad. Norway does not export military small arms, and the exports reflected in Table 11.8 are mainly hunting and competition weapons, or antique weapons sold to collectors.

Under section 8 h) of the Export Control Regulations, the Norwegian Armed Forces and the National Police Directorate are required to report on their exports of defence-related products to the Directorate for Export Control and Sanctions (DEKSA). This information is also provided in this chapter.

Information about export licence applications that have been denied is provided in chapter 11.16. In 2024, three licence applications for the export of defence-related products and dual-use items for military use were denied.

The overview only includes denials of export licence applications that have been subject to detailed, individual review based on the Export Control Regulations.

However, it is important to note that the licence denials only show part of the picture; as a result of the dialogue between defence industry companies and DEKSA on permission to export, companies rarely apply for, or submit enquiries about, export licences for countries where these are not likely to be granted. In many cases, companies themselves turn down requests from countries for the export of defence-related products when the company already knows that a licence is unlikely to be granted.

This chapter also provides information about exports of dual-use items for military use, see 11.14, and about exports of equipment for use in humanitarian mine clearance operations, see 11.15.

Chapter 11.18 provides information about the companies that submitted reports on exports of defence-related products. In 2024, a total of 116 defence industry companies submitted reports on exports of goods, technology and services.

11.1 Exports in 2024: main features

In 2024, Norwegian companies exported defence-related products and dual-use items and services for military use, technology, services etc. worth NOK 16 billion, compared with NOK 12 billion in 2023. This represents an increase of approximately 36 %.

Of the total amount, exports of defence-related products accounted for NOK 13.4 billion. Exports of category A products (primarily arms and ammunition) accounted for NOK 12 billion, and exports of category B products (other types of military equipment) accounted for NOK 1.4 billion. The overall value of defence-related exports (category A and category B products) was approx. 34 % higher in 2024 than in 2023.

The value of exports of dual-use items for military use was approximately NOK 807 million in 2024 compared with approximately NOK 398 million in 2023, an increase of around 103 %. In addition, the total value of exports of defence-related services, items returned to other countries (following repair in Norway), and technology transfers and brokering services was approximately NOK 2 billion in 2024, some 30 % higher than in 2023.

The total value of exports of defence-related services, repairs, technology transfers and brokering services was approximately NOK 1.9 billion in 2024, an increase of 30 % from 2023.

In 2024, the greatest increases in exports were to the US (an increase of NOK 1.4 billion), Romania (NOK 1.3 billion) and Hungary (NOK 1.2 billion). The greatest decreases in exports in 2024 were to Qatar (a decrease of NOK 1.2 billion), the UK (NOK 300 million) and Lithuania (NOK 230 million).

Most exports of defence-related products from Norway still go to other NATO countries. In 2024, some 96 % of exports of category A products and 89 % of exports of category B products from Norway went to other NATO countries and other European countries. The US was the largest recipient of Norwegian defence-related exports (category A and category B products) in 2024, with an overall value of approximately NOK 3.5 billion.

Exports to Ukraine amounted to NOK 945 million in 2024. However, it is important to note that much of the equipment that has been donated from the defence sector is entered in the export accounts at very low values. This is because it is the equipment's accounting value that is entered on the customs declaration. For fixed assets, which includes structural equipment such as tanks, aircraft, artillery vehicles and missiles, the full value has usually been recorded.

11.2 Exports of defence-related products 2015–2024

Figure 11.1 shows exports of category A and category B products, as well as services and repairs to List I products carried out for foreign clients in the period 2015–2024.

11.8 Exports of defence-related products to Ukraine

Table 11.5 shows exports of defence-related products to Ukraine in 2024 by product classification in List I. The table includes both direct sales of defence-related products from Norwegian companies and exports of defence-related products to Allied countries for donation to Ukraine.¹

More information about Norwegian donations of defence-related products and military support to Ukraine can be found on the Norwegian Government website.²

¹The figures for exports to Ukraine reflect the fact that much of the equipment donated from the Norwegian defence sector to Ukraine is entered in the export accounts at very low values. This is because it is the equipment's accounting value that is entered on the customs declaration. However, for equipment such as tanks, aircraft, artillery vehicles and missiles, the full value has usually been recorded.

11.16 Export licence denials

The denial of an export licence application does not mean that there is a general ban on exports of defence-related products to the country in question. The Norwegian export control regime does not operate based on lists of pre-approved or non-approved countries, except in connection with the implementation of legally binding arms embargoes imposed by the UN Security Council or other sanctions and restrictive measures that Norway has aligned itself with.

In 2024, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs denied three licence applications for the export of defence-related products and dual-use items for military use. These concerned exports to the following countries: Colombia, Pakistan and Taiwan.

A decision to deny an export licence is only taken by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs following a detailed, individual review of the application in question in accordance with the export control legislation.
