NORSK ERKLÆRING

”Upon the incorporation of the NEC Directive (2001/81/EC) into the EEA Agreement, Norway declares that it has adopted and is implementing policies and measures to reduce the nitrogen oxides (NO_x) emissions to the level defined in Article 1(b) of the Decision of the EEA Joint Committee. These include new policy instruments that go beyond those incorporated into the EEA Agreement. The new policy instruments are the tax on emissions of NO_x implemented in 2007 and the Environmental Agreement of 14 May 2008 between 14 business organizations and the Norwegian State concerning reductions of NO_x emissions. Norway will not reach compliance with the NO_x emission ceiling in 2010. However, based on the latest emission projections, also reflecting the expected emission reduction effect of the new policy instruments referred to above, Norway expects to comply with the NO_x emission ceiling in the year 2012.”
