A SHIFT FROM LAND TO SEA

An aerial photograph of a coastal city, likely Bergen, Norway, taken at dusk. The city is built on a peninsula and is illuminated with warm lights, contrasting with the cool blue tones of the twilight sky and water. The city's buildings are densely packed, and a prominent church spire is visible. The water is calm, reflecting the city lights and the sky. In the background, there are large, dark mountains and islands. A large ship is docked at a pier on the right side of the image. The overall scene is serene and picturesque.
